Seattle Skyline Block Print by Martino Hoss

It's a family affair. Hoss' grandmother, Della Taylor Hoss, was a brilliant artist and one of his greatest inspirations. In 1928, while living in Yosemite Valley, Della created a series of small editions of woodcut prints to commemorate her experience. Half Dome Winter, Half Dome Spring, El Capitan and Cathedral Spires were exceptional pieces in their own right. In 2011, Martino Hoss began printing new editions from Della's original blocks, adapting the colors and the print methods to reflect his own artistic inspiration, while also honoring the legacy of his grandmother. All prints are titled, numbered and signature stamped. Hoss continues to print new editions of the Yosemite woodcuts and sells them through the Ansel Adams Gallery in Yosemite. This particular piece is a framed 30"x39" view of the Seattle skyline in black block print with a splash of color to draw your eye. It was created originally in the winter of 1989 as part of a five panel piece designed for a 20-foot wall. It is unique and beautiful and would be an excellent addition to any room. If you are in fact interested in the other four panels of the piece, we can help you acquire those as well.

Also included in this package are two sets of blank note cards that feature all five Seattle skyline panel designs.
