

In most parts of Washington, there is a good chance that sbiow (Lushootseed* for coyotes) live in your area. sbiow play important roles in local ecosystems, such as controlling rodent pests. With some simple steps, we can foster coexistence with sbiow and support the safety and well-being of wildlife and humans.

- Feed pets indoors and store pet food indoors.
- Keep trash and compost bins indoors until the morning of pick-up; use wildlife-resistant bins.
- Clean up food waste after picnics.
- Keep barbeque grills clean.
- Enclose compost piles, fruit trees, beehives and chicken coops with fencing.

KEEP PETS ANDWILDLIFE SAFE

- Keep pets on a leash when they are with you outdoors to prevent potential conflicts with sbiow.
- Keep cats indoors unless you have an enclosed outdoor space for them, like a "catio."
- Keep dogs in an enclosed area, such as a kennel, or under your supervision when outside in the yard.

IF YOU ENCOUNTER A sbiaw

It's normal for sbiow to be active at any time of day or night. They will also keep a wary, watchful eye on—and may even follow—passing pets and people, particularly when mother coyotes have pups in their dens.

If you feel a sbiaw is getting too close to you or your pet, humane hazing is an option—create loud noise by clapping your hands and shouting or throw a small object in their direction to encourage the sbiaw to move away.

COEXISTENCE IS A COMMUNITY EFFORT!

These actions will be most effective if we all work together. Please collaborate with your neighbors to help your community coexist with sbiow!

Share coexistence messages with your neighbors using our Coyotes Live Here social media toolkit!

*You are on the traditional and ancestral lands of the Snoqualmie people. The Snoqualmie People speak their ancestral language called Lushootseed which was used by many other tribes in the region. Learn more about Lushootseed and the Snoqualmie Tribe here: www.culture.snoqualmietribeweb.us/language/